Dallas, TX – 214.698.8042

Brenda Damuth has practiced law in Texas since 1978. The main focus of her practice is the representation of health care professionals and resolution of disputes as a mediator. She has extensive first-chair trial experience representing clients in civil litigation disputes, with an emphasis on personal injury. Brenda also represents physicians and nurses before the Texas Medical Board and other administrative bodies.

Professionalism is the hallmark of Brenda's reputation and focus as an attorney. Her formula for success is getting to know her clients and their business mores and objectives, and then moving quickly to resolve matters. She facilitates cases by drawing on the unique tools she has developed as an experienced mediator and an aggressive litigator.

Complex Tort & General Casualty / Personal & Premises Liability

When handling personal and premises liability claims, Brenda acts quickly to protect and preserve vital evidence. She assesses damages based on pain and suffering, lost wages, medical expenses and the rights of surviving family members in the event of death. Brenda was board certified in personal injury trial law for more than 20 years.

Medical Malpractice

Brenda has represented physicians, hospitals and nurses, including nurse practitioners and nurse anesthesiologists, among others. She has lectured nationally to health care professionals regarding medico-legal issues and to the nursing home industry regarding liability issues. Her strong point is conducting thorough research of the issues in a case to direct a winning strategy from investigation to verdict. In addition, Brenda has developed a network of experts she can call on to support her client's position at trial.
