Atlanta, GA – 470.666.5688

J. Chad Capers focuses his practice on complex general liability and commercial litigation matters, representing insureds, businesses, and insurance carriers in state and federal courts. He defends clients against a broad range of claims, including product liability, premises liability, automobile liability, D&O and E&O liability, professional liability, and high-exposure personal injury matters. Chad also handles litigated and non-litigated insurance coverage disputes, providing strategic analysis and risk assessment to insurers and corporate clients. In addition, his current practice includes commercial contract disputes and other business-related claims.

Prior to joining Wilson Elser, Chad practiced at a regional insurance defense firm where he focused primarily on general liability defense, managing cases from inception through resolution. His experience also includes work at a respected California-based law firm, where he handled insurance coverage matters and complex litigation, further developing his ability to analyze high-stakes disputes and craft strategic, results-driven solutions.
