Jamal J. Wyse represents individuals, businesses, and insurance carriers in a broad range of civil litigation matters. His practice focuses on defending general liability, premises liability, automobile liability, construction accident, and New York Labor Law claims. He handles all phases of litigation, including early case assessment, investigation, discovery, depositions, motion practice, mediation, arbitration, trial, and appeal, developing practical strategies tailored to each client's objectives.

Drawing on substantial courtroom experience, Jamal approaches every matter with a trial-ready mindset. He works closely with clients, insurers, and claims professionals to identify key factual and legal issues early, allowing for informed strategic decisions throughout the life of a case. His experience handling matters through trial enables him to effectively evaluate risk, negotiate from a position of strength, and advocate for clients when disputes cannot be resolved outside the courtroom.

Before joining Wilson Elser, Jamal practiced at a New York civil litigation defense firm, where he represented insurers, municipalities, businesses, and individuals in personal injury, premises liability, and automobile accident matters. He first-chaired multiple civil jury trials, obtained defense verdicts, and managed cases through every stage of litigation.

Earlier in his career, Jamal served as a criminal defense attorney with The Legal Aid Society in Brooklyn, representing clients from arraignment through jury trial and securing favorable outcomes. His combined criminal and civil trial experience provides a practical courtroom perspective that continues to inform his litigation strategy and advocacy.
