Jennifer Moran has significant experience defending general liability matters in New Jersey state and federal courts. She represents a broad client base, including commercial property owners, property and construction managers, construction companies, manufacturers, restaurants, hotels, golf courses and telecommunications companies. Jennifer is known for her ability to conduct swift investigations for new claims, provide substantive, timely reporting and communications with clients and insurers throughout a case. She always listens to the client's needs and incorporates those needs with available strategies including early resolution.

Much of her experience comes from defending claims against one of the largest real estate investment trusts in the New York Metro area and large-scale residential properties throughout New Jersey. While defending claims, conducting pre-suit investigations, and working with the client's employees, legal department and insurance carrier, Jennifer stays focused on the cost-benefit factors critical to her client's bottom line.

Jennifer also provides pro bono services to juvenile non-citizen immigrants through the Rutgers Law Clinic.
