New York, NY – 212.915.5493

Jessica Coco represents property owners, businesses, vehicle owners, insurers, and other clients in civil litigation, with a focus on transportation, premises liability, construction, wrongful death, and personal injury matters. She handles matters from early case evaluation through discovery, motion practice, mediation, and settlement.

Jessica's experience includes drafting dispositive motions in motor vehicle matters involving the Graves Amendment, preparing motions in limine concerning future care damages, evaluating medical and damages records, conducting jury verdict research, and assisting with the resolution of wrongful death claims. She uses this work to support case assessment and litigation strategy throughout the life of a matter.

Before joining Wilson Elser as a law clerk, Jessica served as a judicial intern to the Honorable Ariel Chesler of the New York State Supreme Court, New York County. During law school, she also gained experience with multidistrict and mass tort litigation involving pharmaceutical drugs and medical devices and served as a student advocate with Sanctuary for Families, assisting survivors of domestic violence seeking orders of protection.
