Miami, FL – 305.374.4400

Joshua Quetglas represents businesses and individuals in all phases of complex civil litigation. His practice focuses on defending claims involving general liability, wrongful death, catastrophic injury, premises liability, negligent security, environmental and toxic torts, sexual assault, product liability, construction defects, and other complex tort matters.

Joshua has extensive experience representing global asset managers, alternative investment firms, real estate investment trusts, construction companies, and contractors in high-profile tort and environmental litigation. He has also represented medical marijuana treatment centers in environmental liability matters and related litigation.

In addition to his litigation practice, Joshua has served as coverage counsel to insurers in matters involving residential and commercial liability policies, commercial trucking policies, first-party property coverage, and bad faith claims. He has provided coverage and excess-exposure opinions, monitored high-risk claims, and advised carriers on complex multi-claimant disputes.
