Kaylin Grey is a seasoned trial lawyer experienced in complex commercial litigation and business counseling, general and premises liability, maritime, property management litigation and toxic tort defense. Kaylin is a results-oriented problem solver with extensive trial experience representing clients as lead counsel in complex litigation and high-stakes matters. She prepares every case with the expectation that it will go to trial, which is a strategy that helps position her clients well in all stages of litigation.

Kaylin has significant experience handling commercial litigation matters in state and federal court, representing corporate clients and individuals in a wide range of matters, including complex breach of contract cases, writs of garnishment and replevin, business torts, and fraud and securities litigation. In addition, Kaylin provides business counseling to clients as a proactive measure to limit exposure from future litigation. She also serves as national counsel for a large corporate client handling all their employment litigation and EEOC claims.

Community

Kaylin is committed to public service and believes giving back to the community is an integral part of being a contributing member of society. As a former prosecutor with the Miami-Dade State Attorney's Office, she honed her trial skills litigating more than 100 bench trials and more than 20 jury cases helping victims of senseless acts find some form of justice. After years in the private sector, Kaylin maintains that commitment and believes the best way to continue giving back to the community is through the firm's pro bono efforts. She devotes her individual pro bono efforts to criminal matters and civil injustice cases.

Kaylin remains active with the Syracuse University College of Law's trial advocacy program as an advocacy fellow and trial team coach, regularly working with law students who are members of the intercollegiate trial teams.
