New Orleans, LA – 504.702.1710

Kevin M. Johnson represents established businesses and insurance carriers in all phases of litigation in state and federal courts across Louisiana. With a practice rooted in complex commercial disputes, Kevin brings a strategic, client-focused approach to every matter he handles. His litigation practice focuses on trucking and transportation defense, commercial litigation, and insurance defense and coverage – areas where he has developed a reputation for thorough preparation, responsive client service, and effective advocacy.

Kevin began his legal career as an attorney at a well-regarded plaintiff firm in the New Orleans metro area, gaining invaluable insight into how cases are built and evaluated from the other side of the courtroom. He subsequently transitioned to a prominent regional insurance defense firm, where he concentrated on insurance coverage matters, honing his skills in policy analysis and coverage litigation. This diverse background gives Kevin a unique perspective that allows him to anticipate opposing strategies and craft more effective defense approaches for his clients.

Kevin is committed to building lasting relationships with his clients by providing clear communication, practical legal guidance, and zealous representation. He takes pride in understanding each client's business objectives and tailoring his litigation strategy accordingly, whether the goal is early resolution or taking a case through trial.
