San Diego, CA – 619.881.6404

Kristine Ahlgrimm represents businesses and individuals in complex civil litigation matters. Her practice focuses on the defense of aviation and aerospace claims, as well as commercial liability litigation involving general liability, product liability, premises liability, and personal injury claims.

Before joining Wilson Elser, Kristine practiced at a San Diego law firm, where she handled complex civil litigation matters involving consumer class actions and mass arbitrations, including disputes involving defective products, unlawful business practices, unfair competition, data breaches, and privacy issues.

During law school, Kristine clerked with several civil litigation firms, worked with in-house corporate counsel, and served as a research assistant on projects ranging from United States Patent and Trademark Office litigation to legal ethics.

Before attending law school, Kristine worked as a paralegal, assisting with litigation involving catastrophic injury, wrongful death, medical malpractice, employment law, workers' compensation, and nonprofit business matters.
