New York, NY – 212.915.5773

Meghan Murray is an experienced litigation attorney and national counsel managing partner. Her practice focuses on the defense of claims related to commercial litigation, complex tort and general casualty, product liability, and toxic tort and environmental regulations.

Meghan was chosen by the Federation of Defense & Corporate Counsel as one of 24 attorneys in the Ladder Down Program for national network participation and collaboration.

Commercial Litigation

Meghan has successfully defended high-exposure commercial litigation disputes at the state and federal court levels. She defends international and domestic corporations, including Fortune 500 companies, against claims related to product liability and exposure to toxic substances. In addition, Meghan leads multistate and federal litigation as acting national counsel and consistently achieves results that exceed client expectations.

Complex Tort & General Casualty

Meghan has extensive experience defending complex tort and general casualty disputes arising out of premises liability, automobile and trucking accidents, and negligent security. Meghan has deposed hundreds of fact and expert witnesses, argued dispositive motions, and successfully negotiated matters to resolution in the best interests of clients.

Product Liability

Meghan defends manufacturers, distributors, and retailers in litigation involving state-of-the-art products. She uses her critical understanding of necessary industry compliance, risk management, and regulatory concerns to advise clients of steps that should be taken to prevent product liability disputes.
