New York, NY – 212.915.5172

Rosemarie Davis defends hospitals, physicians, and allied health care professionals in complex medical malpractice cases. She effectively handles cases from inception through trial, including pleadings, discovery, depositions, motion practice, court appearances, and trial preparation in state and federal courts. Rosemarie works closely with medical experts and insurers to develop compelling defense strategies in high-exposure cases across specialties including obstetrics, gynecology, oncology, surgery, and long-term care. Leveraging a strong command of medical standards of care, she has secured favorable results through strategic litigation, including success on summary judgment and other dispositive motions.

Before joining Wilson Elser, Rosemarie gained valuable experience at a prominent New York City defense firm, where she defended health care providers and institutions in complex medical malpractice cases and defended major municipal mass transit entities in state and federal courts. She adeptly managed all phases of litigation, from pre-suit investigations through trial, including conducting comprehensive case assessments, evaluating liability and damages, and analyzing medical records, expert reports, and legal precedents, balancing risk management with the goal of limiting liability exposure.
