Of Counsel

sarah.williamson@wilsonelser.com

Atlanta, GA – 470.666.5892

Sarah Williamson practices in general civil litigation and specializes in insurance defense on behalf of corporations and individuals in a broad range of civil cases. She defends personal injury, trucking, and auto collision cases, as well as premises liability, negligent security, wrongful death, property disputes, and other civil tort matters in state and federal courts. Sarah is well-versed in defending matters ranging from minor slip-and-fall cases to complex and catastrophic injury cases, including claims for wrongful death.

Sarah's experience includes defense of national transportation companies, large trucking companies in multi-state trucking cases, national and regional corporations, and small business owners and their employees. She has represented clients successfully in all phases of the litigation process. Sarah develops rapport with clients and opponents alike to successfully negotiate solutions and advance her clients' interests.

Prior to practicing law, Sarah was an operations director for a global lighting company and worked in the publishing and insurance industries. Clients enjoy working with Sarah and respect her professionalism and ability to help them navigate complex issues. She uses her communication and negotiation skills to reach resolutions and to devise a cost-effective approach for clients. Sarah provides clear communication to clients throughout the legal process to ensure they stay informed during each phase of litigation.
