Taylor Allin focuses primarily on complex litigation involving catastrophic injury, transportation, construction defect, employment, commercial disputes and general liability matters in many jurisdictions, primarily in Arizona, Utah and Nebraska. Taylor has successfully handled numerous arbitrations/ mediations and all phases of litigation.

Taylor is an office mentor and the lead for the 24/7 emergency response team in Arizona. He is a member of the firm's National Trial Team and has tried cases in federal and state court and handled private arbitrations. In addition, Taylor has achieved certification in the firm's rigorous National Mock Trial Program, through which our most successful trial lawyers impart their knowledge to those destined to join their ranks.

Taylor has experience with a wide range of transportation matters, including bodily injury, wrongful death, employment, premises liability, contracts, freight broker liability and product liability. He is well versed in dealing with trucking, automobile, automated people mover, air transport and marine/admiralty matters. Taylor also defends and manages claims on behalf of bars and restaurants in the areas of personal injury, premises liability and dram shop law. He also handles commercial disputes involving construction companies, transportation companies and other business concerns.

Taylor regularly handles employment matters before state and federal courts and agencies regarding issues such as wage-and-hour, employee misclassification, discrimination and harassment, and wrongful termination of employment. He provides counsel and training to employers on discrimination and harassment prevention and managing employees within the law.

In law school, Taylor assisted impoverished families through issues with foreclosure and bankruptcy, where his work earned the Law Student Volunteer of the Month Award from Southern Arizona Legal Aid. Taylor also had externships with the office of general counsel
